Entered According to Act of Congress, in the year 1868,

INTRODUCTION.

The Author acknowledges his many obligations to the Superintendents of Public Instruction in the several States of Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio, where his system of School Registers is almost exclusively used, for valuable suggestions in the arrangements of previous editions.

This edition has been prepared expressly for the State of Minnesota, under the advice of Hon. Mark H. Dunnell, our worthy and able Superintendent of Public Instruction. To him several of its present features are wholly due.

In offering this Edition to the schools, the Publishers claim to present the most perfect School Register ever published.

The peculiar features, and the superiority of this over all other Registers, may be briefly stated as follows:

1st. It is simple in its plan and easily understood.

2nd. Double the number of names may be recorded of any Register of the same cost.

3rd. At the end of each four weeks there is a space for the Monthly Summary of Attendance; there is also a space for the Total Summary at the close of each term.

4th. Each day has two spaces appropriated to it, one for the forenoon and the other for the afternoon, so that the attendance of each half day of the session is easily kept. These spaces are large enough to record in them the number of minutes each pupil is tardy. The time lost by tardiness in our schools is great. When we add this to that lost by absence the amount is surprising.

5th. This Register is specially designed to remedy this greatest of evils in our Schools, by showing the time, even to a minute, that any Pupil is absent from School. Parents not unfrequently become dissatisfied with their schools, because their children do not make more rapid progress in their studies. Might they not find the true reason by consulting the Record of Attendance? It is a fact shown by reliable statistics, that no inconsiderable part of the funds so generously appropriated to school purposes, is absolutely thrown away in consequence of the Irregular Attendance of Pupils.

6th. This System furnishes a defence to Teachers and School Officers against those who would attack the character of the School. The following is a case in point: The author says, "Some time since, a certain parent became exceedingly dissatisfied with my school on the ground just mentioned. One morning he called very abruptly at my school-room, and in a rough manner told me that his boy, some 16 years of age, had learned nothing but wickedness that term; and he was told by him, that he had not read twice in a week on an average during the whole term. I replied, 'Your boy has, I presume, told you the truth.' I then presented him my Daily Register, similar in form to this, and showed him that his boy, during the twelve weeks he had been a member of the school, had been present but twenty-five days, and during these twenty-five days had lost by tardiness 1,800 minutes—or five days of six hours each." The parent was astonished, as thousands of other parents and School Officers would be, if they knew the actual amount of time lost to pupils by Tardiness and Irregularity of Attendance. If this Register is properly kept, the precise time each pupil is in school may be known.

7th. The summary of the enrollment and attendance of pupils for each term of school, which is of great importance to the District Clerk in making his annual report of the affairs of the school to the County Auditor, is alone peculiar to this Register.

8th. The Annual Record of the pupil's attendance at school is also an important addition to this Register. It is of great convenience to the District Clerk in making out his annual reports of the attendance of pupils, and of the studies pursued, as required by law.

Teachers and School District Clerks should by no means overlook the "Annual Register of Parents and Pupils" toward the back part of this book; nor the "Summary of Enrollment and Attendance of Pupils during the terms and years" which the school has been taught. These Summaries should be made up and certified to by the Teachers before the Register is returned to the District Clerk. If this is done as designed, the District Clerk will be greatly aided in making out his report of the Schools as required by law.

☞ Read carefully the Note of Explanation on the page immediately preceding the "Annual Enrollment of Parents and Pupils," and follow the directions there given.

Formula and Directions for Keeping the Register.

Teacher's Daily Register for the Term commencing October 3rd, 1864, and Ending October 29th, 1864.

2	SARAH MCPHERSON,.....	10																									24

By the above formula, the method of keeping the Daily Register is clearly shown. Only one month is here represented, but this is simply sufficient, as all the months are similarly kept.

After the blank space for the commencement of the school, (October 3rd, 1864,) is filled, write down the name of the month, (October,) and the name of the teacher, (Mary H. Robinson.) Next, put in the days of the month, below the days of the week; then follow, the numbers of the pupils, their names, and their ages. Opposite each pupil's name are two square spaces; the upper space denotes the morning attendance, and the lower space, the afternoon attendance. A small oblique mark (/) placed in the upper space shows that the pupil was present at the opening of the morning session; a similar mark in the lower space denotes his presence at the commencement of the afternoon session. A blank space denotes absence for the entire half-day.

If a pupil is Tardy at the morning or afternoon session, the number of minutes of Tardiness is placed in its appropriate place, the space being large enough to record two figures. A small dot (•) placed over the figures denoting Tardiness shows that the pupil has been excused.

At the end of the month, in the column headed "Monthly Summary," the whole number of minutes of Tardiness for the month is recorded in the upper space, and the number of days of attendance in the lower. At the close of the Term, the amounts in the Monthly Summaries are added and the sum placed in the colum headed "Total Summary." At this time, the Teacher will also fill up the blank denoting the day of the ending of the Term, (October 29th, 1864.) This day cannot be known certainly till the last day of school, and should not be put in till that time.

To facilitate the recording of Tardiness, we have prepared a Tablet or Black Board, 9 x 14 inches, which is placed near the school room door. When pupils come in tardy, they look at the clock, turn to the Tablet, write their No. in the first column, and the number of minutes they are tardy in the second column. At the close of school, or at some other convenient time, the Pupil's Record on the Tablet is transferred to the Daily Register. Requiring pupils thus to record their own tardiness has a great tendency to diminish the evil, and if the Tablet were placed near the teacher's desk, perhaps it would be still more efficient, for it is something of a punishment for the pupil to record his tardiness in the presence of the whole school.

The Visitors' Record, at the end of the book, should not be forgotten. As the teacher reports the number of visitors to the Director, it is important that a correct Record be kept of all who visit the school. It is hoped that this number will always be large, for the best visited schools are usually the most prosperous. The number of visitors could be much increased, if the teacher would make frequent and persistent efforts among the friends and patrons of the school.

THE AUTHOR.
